hello
light

The marshes of East London are usually a gloomy place and the recent sunny weather exposes strange things that were not meant to be seen in the sunlight.

we creep away from the main path

& find this plant enjoying sun after long months underground

& this night campfire revealed by the daylight.

But then we stumbled upon this bizarre tree a strange, mossy shape

in the harsh light of sun sprawled out like a dying spider.

@dorrismccomics